George Bernard Shaw

The world of wine continues to amaze and intrigue with its hundreds of different grape varieties & wine regions, many from the traditional wine regions of our neighbours in Europe, and others a little further afield, all with their subtly different aromas and flavours.

Wines made as naturally as possible can indeed reflect the place where they are grown - a sort of sense of place reflected in the wine in your glass - in the way that Gougane Barra has that wonderful sense of place.

If wine could be made in Gougane Barra, it would taste magical!

Colm McCan, Le Caveau
